

Partnership for Safety and Justice Oregon Transition Resource Guide

This guide is new for the Partnership for Safety and Justice. It's a starting point and a work in progress. This is not a complete list. It does not represent all of the programs and organizations that provide support and resources to people leaving prison. Some groups may only serve certain people. When you contact a group, always ask about other organizations that might provide the services you need. Some of the groups or programs listed have staff who are familiar with the challenges facing people with criminal records. Some of the groups provide programs for survival that exist to aid anyone in need of food or other necessities. Please let us know if you have additions, comments, or updates. Call us at 503-335-8449 or email Caylor@safetyandjustice.org. Good luck and best wishes for your life after prison.

A quick note about computers and web sites – A great deal of information is available through the internet. If groups in this resource guide have a web site, we've included it so that you can quickly get more information. If you are prohibited from using computers, we've included phone numbers and addresses where available. If you do not have a computer, public libraries in Oregon have computers connected to the web. Librarians will help you learn to use them if you ask. If you are in the Portland area, Free Geek (<http://freegeek.org/> (503)232-9350) is a non-profit that allows people to "adopt a computer" in exchange for 24 hours of service.
